CONSPIRACY OF THE PEOPLE.—The Albany Evening Journal of the 22d of November, in answer to the English papers' strictures on the "mob element" in the United States, says

The temper of the people is admirable. The world never saw such an exhibition of good nature and magnanimity The "mob," as our English critics are pleased to call us, has taught mankind a new lesson in the art of self-restraint It has exhibited a patience, a calm endurance, a charity towards those in power a disposition to accept unmurmuringly whatever is in store for it, such as was never before known or dreamed to be possible

Its forbearance has been sorely tried It has had much to endure—much to bear up against—much to put its mettle to the test.—It has been disappointed in the enemy—disappointed in some of its rulers—disappointed in the character and direction of the conflict. It has built up idols only to see them hurled down—it has put its trust in Generals only to see them prove themselves incompetent or unable to lead our armies to victory. It has seen opportunities neglected, and strength that might have crushed the Rebellion, frittered away. It has seen campaigns botched and ruined by divided counsels. It has seen indecision at the sources of power—struggles for supremacy among political factions—wranglings among rival Chieftains—jealousies in the Army and Navy It has seen hordes of contractors beseiging the Federal treasury—contractors rolling in wealth, acquired by unrighteous means—Senators and Representatives in Congress shamelessly speculating in the misfortunes of their country

But the "mob" has never for a moment lost heart. It has been unfaltering in the faith that the country would be saved in spite of all this. It has tenaciously clung to the belief that there was a Providence moving in our affairs; that we were undergoing one of those disciplinary processes through which all peoples have been made to pass in their progress from youth to manhood. It has looked with confidence to better days—to brighter skies—to a peace honorably, triumphantly achieved. It has had its moments of despondency, but it has never lost hope. It has been depressed, but it has never yielded to despair. It has been held up through all the doubt and darkness of the past by an instinct that told it all would be well at last. This instinct—which is to the multitude what provision is to the individual—has been its stay and staff of support through all its trials and sufferings It has found expression in the popular remark, heard constantly among all classes:—"I don't see the way, but I feel that we are coming out right"

MARTINDALE'S ACQUITTAL.—Gen. Martindale has been acquitted by a Court Martial, of the charges preferred against him by Gen. Fitzjohn Porter In his defence, he took the ground that Gen. Porter had made the charges from personal jealousy and to cover up his own short-comings The Court sustained this view of the case by their judgment. Porter is a pet of Gen. McClellan's, and it is to that circumstance Gen. Martindale refers in the following extract from his defence before the Court

I know Gen Porter well He was fully revealed to me at the battles of Hanover and Gaines' Mill. He will stand revealed to the country when the iron box, bound by the hushing discipline of army regulations, and holding the voice and official communications of general officers, shall be unlocked. Let him pass If he will win one victory by his talents, or by accident, for the cause of the country and the Union, I will not be disposed to sound a note of discord in the song of applause which the popular heart will chant in his praise In camp, or out of camp, no General, no citizen, will be more ready to express opinions in his favor when he merits them. Let him, however, stand from under the shadow and protection of a name and reputation high advanced above his own. In this hour of peril the country demands the services of brave Generals who will not misbehave before the enemy, and of those also who are capable of achieving results by their genius, and not those whom the obligations of juvenile friendship have exalted to positions for which they have neither proportionate experience, ability or patriotism

LOCAL JEALOUSIES.—The New Haven Palladium, of the 20th of November, reviews with a great show of justice the course of the New York city papers, in extolling the fancy regiments raised in the city, and neglecting to notice those from the rural districts or from any State but New York. The following is to the point on the subject,

A correspondent in Darien calls attention to the fact that New England has furnished just as good fighting material as New York, even though correspondents of the New York papers fail to perceive it In almost every engagement, he says, New York soldiers are represented as doing the principal part of the fighting, and yet often in summing up the casualties they belie their own statements, as at James' Island while other regiments were highly extolled, the Connecticut Seventh was much noticed but in their list of killed and wounded the Seventh was found to have suffered more than any other regiment This is only one instance The same occurs in almost every engagement

One Bushrk sometime since got enraged against a man named Swift and seizing him by the seat of his pantaloons and the nape of his neck threw him off a wharf in New York As an exhibition of strength it was pretty but as an amusement expensive, for a jury recently awarded the injured Swift $5000 damages.

WEDNESDAY MORNING DEC 31 1862

Tale of a Tub

The reported peace propositions of the Confederates to the Democratic political leaders in the Middle States, have excited hopes among the people at large that appear destined to disappointment These proposals were thrown out only to distract the attention of the loyal States, and not with any hope or desire that they should be accepted by them They were made to the leaders of a party and not to the regularly constituted authorities, thereby insulting the very Government under whose sway they proposed to return The terms were inadmissible anyhow The payment of the Confederate debt is one of the conditions—a condition which offers a premium for future rebellions They also ask that the Government shall be Democratic before they will submit to it They ask all and more, than they demanded before the war broke out as the condition on which they will cease to do wrong, and submit to the laws

If the people of the loyal States were to-morrow to accede to their shameful conditions, they would find that the exactions of the rebels would be increased in proportion to their self estimated importance in a military point of view

While we are discussing the probabilities of a peace founded on greater or less concessions, the rebels are straining every nerve to carry out their designs They keep in view the probability of divisions among the Unionists, and will from time to time throw out attractive offers to the Democracy, just as the whale hunters do a tub to amuse their gigantic game They calculate that the loyalists will divide on the questions presented, just as the whale amuses himself by knocking the tub around until his pursuer gets a good chance to harpoon him. We cannot see these peace propositions in any other light The stratagem is as old as the world, and has been used under as many different forms as the affairs of nations have allowed If the Unionists are deceived by it, they have themselves alone to thank for it—they will step into the pit in the light of day.

The Northern co-adjutors of the rebels tell us that there is a strong, active Union sentiment, to strengthen the popular credulity in their "Tale of a Tub." It finds expression by such Democrats as Mr Barksdale, of Mississippi, in the rebel Congress, in this wise

"I wish gentlemen present, and the world in general, to understand that constitutions, laws, justice, right and precedents, all are to be overlooked, unthought of, and must yield to the one great, vital, all important, imperative necessity of whipping the Yankees—that once accomplished, we are willing to listen to twaddle about constitutions

The true Union men of the South are in a situation thus graphically described by the editor of the Vicksburg Whig, Mr Montgomery.

The vacillating and dilatory policy of the Federal Government gave no hope of relief, and the only course left the Union man was to stultify his better feelings, forswear his earnest convictions and join the pestiferous hot popular multitude, and soon he could be seen, with pale cheeks to utter those sentiments which belied his heart. As time wore on the Federal Government began to show signs of vitality, and ultimately of power, and now the Union men are again looking to the future.

If there is ever any Union party South it will be by whipping the Confederates, who are rebels from conviction, and giving honest men a chance to breathe and speak again A spirit of sectionalism fostered by thirty years of unrebuked insolence—a habit of authority which was confirmed by Northern submission—a confidence in personal prowess established by unresisted canings of Northern Congressmen, and the tarring and feathering of Northern citizens, can only be destroyed by thrashing a large portion of the Confederates out of existence and the balance out of the territories of the nation If any man expects peace on any other conditions he is blind to patent facts When the Confederates are thus beaten, we will find a Union party in the South respectable in numbers and powerful in talent courage and a resolution to avenge their wrongs and abide in the Union

ESCAPE OF PRISONERS.—The Mountaineer says that the Wasco county jail was emptied of its inmates on Christmas night The prisoners, three in number, were Tom Taylor, charged with murder, Henry Clifton horse stealing, and Alfred Stewart, charged with obtaining money under false pretenses The prisoners cut their manacles off and their way through the door of the cell A reward of $500 is offered for their apprehension, $300 for Taylor and $100 for each of the others.

STABBING AFFRAY.—A correspondent of the Oregon Statesman says that on the 14th of December E H Meservy county coroner of Curry county, stabbed A C Boyd with a knife—supposed to be fatal—as it is in the region of the heart it is out of the question for him to survive many hours The cause is supposed to be about a squaw, the wife of said Meservy.

Miscellaneous Paragraphs

The Americans in Honolulu have contributed $1000 to the National Sanitary Fund

Parties persisting in allowing to do any garrison duty or in any manner bear arms, until regularly exchanged

Francis P Blair denies that he ever made any charges against Gen Curtis about cotton speculations

Gen Wright issued the call for a new regiment of infantry and several companies of cavalry in the District of Columbia

Fifty six members of the Chicago Typographical Union are in the army and most of them have won promotions

In good society we are required to do obliging things to one another in general society we are obliged only to say them

The fierce rebel Gen Hindman of Arkansas has been arrested as a public thief, and forwarded to Richmond for punishment

An enthusiastic admirer of John Morgan wrote to a rebel paper about his gallant chief which got into print gallant thief

The postal appropriation for the coming year is $12 000 000 without including a special appropriation of $1 000 000 for the Overland Mail

A chaplain writes from an army hospital that the three words which most often tremble on the lips of the dying soldiers are Mother—Home—Heaven

A newspaper writer has discovered an amazing resemblance between Cromwell and General Fremont The former parted his hair in the middle and does the latter

The Portland Transcript says that Mrs Fremont's "Story of the Guard" is designed to be a defense of her husband's administration of affairs in the western department

Roger A Pryor has got a report in circulation, in the rebel papers that he was made a prisoner at the battle of Centerville, and escaped by killing two Yankee soldiers He must have improved very much, since he did not fight "Bowie-knife" Potter

Prussia intends to become a strong naval power. It is officially announced that within seven years she will have a fleet of 70 men of war, carrying 568 guns The Baltic is to be the principal maritime station, the Government having selected the port of Jasmund in the island of Rugen The cost of the fleet and the dockyards is estimated at $60,000,000

Some of our cotemporaries are criticizing the conduct of the Slave States during the Revolutionary War, in not furnishing more men at that time We should be very well content with their conduct then if they did not act so badly now If they were slow to come out in that contest, they have shown too much alacrity in the scheme for destroying their country

GEN. HOOKER.—A correspondent of the N Y. Evening Post, says

Make way for the center grand division, under Hooker! Let the foe who fronts the men he leads look well to their lines that day—How like a lion he stormed down on their beaten, broken lines at Antietam When he started that morning, impetuous, resistless, his men, who had caught the fiery impulse of their chief, halted for no obstacle and were stayed by no foe Over infantry, cavalry, artillery, they fought their way, and, as they went it was clear to see that by midday this resistless advance would roll up the rebel hosts like a scroll At nine o'clock, Hooker fell, struck by a ball Men who had watched his splendid advance, his magnificent success exclaimed, "Where is the man who will follow up these glorious advantages or who will see that they are followed up?" No such man followed Hooker that day On a distant part of the field, Burnside stubbornly fighting his way to the bridge, and then across it, did wonders But no mind equal to maintaining the fruits of Hooker's grand advance lighted over that part of the field of Antietam

HOW THEY FIRE IN BATTLE.—An army correspondent says

You wonder whether the regiments fire regularly in volley or whether each man loads and fires as fast as he can That depends upon circumstances, but usually, except when the enemy is near at hand the regiments fire only at the command of their officers. You hear a drop, drop, drop, as a few of the skirmishers fire, followed by a rattle and roll, which sounds like the falling of a building, just as some of you have heard the brick walls tumble at a great fire. Sometimes when a body of the enemy's cavalry are sweeping down upon a regiment to cut it to pieces, the men form into a square, with officers and musicians in the centre The front rank stands with bayonet charged, while the second rank fires as fast as it can Sometimes they form in four ranks deep—the two front ones kneeling with bayonet charged, so that if the enemy should come upon them, they would run against a picket fence of bayonets When they form in this way, the other two ranks load and fire as fast as they can Then the roar is terrific, and many a horse and his rider goes down before the terrible storm of bullets

A WAR HORSE.—A member of the First Massachusetts cavalry writes concerning a horse belonging to the Magruder battery (formerly commanded by Gen Magruder of the Confederate army) as follows

The old horse went to James Island, near Charleston, and was so wounded as to be unfit for battery use, he was turned loose, and, as the battery refused to own him, he hung around our camp eating with our horses when they were fed When we went out to drill or ride on the beach he would trot along beside us One day when the battery was out drilling, he fell into the ranks on the gun with which he used to drill and went through the whole exercise They intended to leave him on the island when we left, but the patriot veteran had no idea of following the example of his former commander and going over to the rebels or of being taken by them, and so crowded in with the other horses when they were put aboard

PEANUT IN CALIFORNIA.—The Bulletin remarks

Some 10,000 pounds of peanuts were raised in Yolo and Sacramento counties during the last year; 8,000 pounds of which were purchased by a firm in this city Had it not been for the flood, there probably would have been over 20,000 pounds produced. The first lot of peanuts raised in this State came into market about three years ago Their cultivation has been so successful that it is probable the importation of them will entirely cease within the next two years Dealers purchase them of the producers at twenty cents per pound, and wholesale them at twenty five cents

THE SCENES OF THE DECLARATION OF INDEPENDENCE.—One of the most remarkable circumstances attending the fortunes of the signers of the Declaration of Independence was the strict propriety on which their after lives were passed and the long period to which they were generally protracted The writer in a Northern journal says

Most of the signers of the Declaration of American Independence lived to a good old age crowned with the honors bestowed by the gratitude of the Republic and some of them performed many a day of their service of nature Of the fifty six who affixed their signatures to that document twenty two lived to an age exceeding seventy years and forty to an age of sixty Only two of them under—Gwinnett of Georgia who fell in a duel in his 45th year and Lynch of South Carolina who was shipwrecked in the 40th—died in violent death Twenty one lived to see the beginning of the present century when were permitted to see the great experiment of a representative republic fairly commenced by the events of fifty years Of all the delegates from New York and New England only one (Whipple of New Hampshire) died at an earlier age than sixty Never in the world had the fathers of a whole land grand political movement more reason to congratulate themselves and the country on the issue The exertions and perils of their manhood were succeeded by a peaceful honored and prosperous old age in which they witnessed the happy result of the institutions they have aided in devising and they were gathered to their graves amid the regrets of the generation which was in its cradle when they laid the foundations of the Republic

MEXICAN NEWS.—The Echo de Pacifique of December 19th gives the Mexican news with a French coloring The news is to the 23d of November from the city of Mexico

The Mexican journals are emitting fire and flame in their articles referring to the entry of the French troops in Jalapa At the approach of the soldiers the inhabitants of that place pronounced in favor of the French and one hundred of the young men of Jalapa offered their services to the army General Bazaine with 6 000 men, occupy the city and suburbs The telegraphic dispatches representing the French troops as being in a critical position are entirely devoid of truth On the contrary, it is our soldiers who have captured the provision convoys of the Mexican army It is a repetition of the history of Borrego—decidedly, the telegraph is incorrigible On the 6th of November, the Mexican soldiers abandoned a convoy of provisions being unable to defend it On another occasion Col Diaz Miron left in the hands of the French a train of 70 mules loaded with provisions The Mexicans have destroyed and abandoned the fortress on the Cunfre de Perote which commanded the defiles of Jalapa.—They have also destroyed by means of mines, the road from Cumbres to Acultzingo On account of the scarcity of paper in Mexico, the President, Juarez, has permitted the importation of that article free of duty The French barque La Perouse which arrived at Mazatlan, was refused by the authorities the right to discharge her cargo, on account of the difficulties existing between the French and Mexican Governments

CONFEDERATE PATRIOTISM.—A late number of the Richmond Examiner, in speaking of the use of negroes by the Confederates, contains the following

It appears that slaveholders are averse for some reason to hire their negroes in the Confederate army The prejudice is certainly an ignorant and mean one As the war originated and is carried on in great part for the defense of the slaveholder in his property rights and the perpetuation of the institution, it is reasonable to suppose that he ought to be first and foremost in aiding and assisting by every means in his power, the triumph and success of our arms Good wages are offered and proper care and attention will be given every negro hired to the army, and the slaveholder ought to remember that for every negro he thus furnishes, he puts a soldier in the ranks

SENTENCED.—The State Republican says that a man named Skeen, who was recently arrested in Lane county for horse-stealing was tried and convicted on the 24th of December at a special term of the Court, called for the purpose of trying him He was sentenced to three years in the Penitentiary

Coughs.—The sudden changes of our climate are sources of PULMONARY BRONCHIAL and ASTHMATIC AFFECTIONS. Experience having proved that simple remedies often act speedily and certainly when taken in the early stages of the disease recourse should at once be had to Brown's Bronchial Troches or Lozenges, for the Cold, Cough or Irritation of the Throat to every person sight, as by this precaution a more serious attack may be effectually warded off PUBLIC SPEAKERS and SINGERS will find them effectual for clearing and strengthening the voice See advertisement dec16dw3m

White's Fever and Ague Drops.—For the cure of AGUE PANAMA FEVER NEURALGIA and GENERAL DEBILITY

This medicine has been used in private practice for many years with great success I dread in no instance has it failed to effect a speedy cure in Ague especially one bottle having been found sufficient in most cases and in none are more than two bottles required

A great number of testimonials could be given to verify these statements but the proprietor refers relying upon the merits of the medicine alone A cure is guaranteed in nine cases out of ten

The MORNING OREGONIAN has a larger SUBSCRIPTION LIST than any other Daily published in this City.

THE LUMBER TRADE.—The time was in Oregon that a man owning a saw mill was looked on as a candidate for bankruptcy — Lumber was sold at home at ruinously low prices, and the attempt to compete with the Puget Sound mills in the San Francisco market aggravated the troubles of mill owners During the first half of 1862, the mills at this city were idle, but since that time the home demand for lumber has been brisk and increasing, and the city mills have been run to their utmost capacity to supply it. During the months of October, November and December the upper steam saw mills turned out 720,725 feet of lumber, or 240 241 feet a month. From the 15th of September to the 15th of December, the lower steam saw mills turned out 941,000 feet, or 313 777 feet a month. It will be seen from this that the capacity of these mills is 0,548,216 feet a year and upwards, for they have been running only in day time for some days past — Of all the lumber in use, more than one-third is dressed lumber. Both mills have planing machinery, and in calculating the value of the lumber that has gone into improvements here, we must include that added by planing and tonguing and groving over 2,000,000 feet of it. Besides the lumber produced at home, the city demands about 2,000 000 per annum from outside mills. We have thus about 8,000,000 feet of lumber entering into and becoming a part of the property values of this city; which at $20 a thousand, counting only the rough lumber value, is $160,000 The estimated consumption for the year 186 is 10,000,000 feet. Of this it is calculated that there will be needed 1,000 000 feet in boxes, 2,500,000 for streets and side-walks 2,500,000 of planed lumber, and 4,000,000 of assorted building lumber The Dalles lumber demand is largely supplied from Oak Point Mills, but little of it going from the city mills.

WORTHILY BESTOWED.—There was a large assemblage at the Engine house of Multnomah No. 2, yesterday evening, to witness the presentation of a token emblematic of the esteem of the company for their foreman, A B. Hallock, Esq At about half-past eight o'clock, Mr. Hallock arrived, in company with the Chief Engineer, Mr. Councilman Holmes, Assistants of the Chief Engineer, and officers of the various fire companies. Denison's Cornet Band was in attendance, and welcomed the new-comers with a crash of martial music. All present at once went to the assembly hall where an elegant collation was spread, and about seventy members of the company and guests sat down. After the cravings of appetite were satiated, and a perfectly awful quantity of champagne swallowed, Mr Brooks Trevett, First Assistant of 2's, drew a magnificent silver trumpet, bearing this inscription: "Presented by Multnomah Engine Co. No. 2, of Portland, Oregon, to A. B. Hallock —five years their Foreman."

In presenting this beautiful insignia of the foreman's office, Mr. Trevett recounted in very pretty phrase the benefits received from the efficient management of the Company's affairs by Mr. Hallock; how he had fostered discipline and so controlled the workings of the members that they had arrived at a degree of efficiency of which any body of men might be proud. Nor did they present him with this token of their esteem more out of admiration of his qualities as a fireman than from esteem for his personal traits, which had won their confidence.

Then the band struck up with a will, cutting off Mr. Hallock's response, for a while. Finally he came to time, and thanked the boys with feeling—he could not make a speech, in fact, the "Old man" acknowledged they had "got" him. So all hands cheered with a will, and resumed their regular drinking, in which pleasant exercise we left them.

The present to Mr. Hallock is indeed an elegant affair, gotten up in good taste, of great intrinsic value for the silver that is in it, but of infinitely more because it tells of years of labor and hardship undergone in protecting property without reward, other than that which arises from a consciousness of work well done.

HIGH WIND.—The mail-coach, on the line to Sacramento was detained two hours yesterday morning in trying to cross the Willamette, on account of high wind. The steam ferry-boat was in use, but she could not make the landing on the other side of the river for a long time.

ARRIVAL.—The bark Almatta, from San Francisco, arrived at Couch's Wharf yesterday afternoon. The following is her manifest:

J Myer, 25 packages, W F Burnham, 4; Hodge & Calef, 19; A Cohn & Co, 1062; Richards & McCrakan, 1448; O S B Co, 80; O S B, 20; Kallmus, J R & a (tic) 89, Wilhelm & Hauf & Co., 5; Cohen, Lyon & Co 4, W H Mead 20; Hargren & Shindler, 11; J W Pierson & Co., 50 4 M & L M Starr, 313, J Wilson, 51 B, 40 A Dodge, 1 Capt B F Smith, 100, Failing & Holt, 239 J Kohn & Co 30, C G, 4; J Seller & Co., 55, A H Brown, 2 M Seliers & Co., 183; J W, 15, Turnbull, 4 H W Corbett, 122 Hacker Bros, 496, F in diamond G, 625, J Weil, 75 W H Harris, 33; Xavier & Co., 251; Hunniston, Wilson & Co., 58, Haas Bros, 75, Jacob Kammler, 2; E Millwain, 24 Smith & Davis, 96; J Gilman, 1, B & R, 24, Henry Law 328, Knapp Burrell & Co., 18; Charman Warner & Co., 12 E J North rup & Co., 106, Allen & Lewis, 318, diamond L, J Ladd Reed & Co., 180; C L Parker, 2, Cook, 10, F & C, 10, Seymour & Joyne, 74; M P, 20, J C A 41, J S Rucker, 2 T H & Co., 25; diamond P, 50, B Pittock & Co, 23, Capt Hazel, 268.

NEWS FROM JAPAN.—A letter from Kanagawa, Japan, of the 10th of November, to the S. F. Bulletin, from which we quote as follows:

On the 7th the Japanese authorities at 12 o'clock, M., gave a salute of 17 guns to the Minister of the United States, with the flag of our Union at the fore This was the first regular salute ever given by this Government or people to a foreign Minister. The guns were acknowledged by the Wyoming gun for gun, with the Japanese flag at the fore Thus the United States are first again in getting this acknowledgment of national courtesy from the Japanese. We hope soon to get a national salute, but it may be a question of time Our Minister will negotiate it through if it can be done.

We have also got an order from the Japanese Government for two first class steam sloops-of-war, 24 guns each, and one gunboat of 16 guns, also steam, and the first instalment on the payment is paid. Thus the United States is again favored and preferred in an order for their navy over all other nations, and I trust our builders will show them vessels that will not be excelled in the world for speed, durability, beauty and service The Government here is undoubtedly determined to have a fair navy, and they mean to have only first rate vessels, and all steam at that. They mean also to prepare for any emergency that may transpire.

MARRIED:

At the residence of the bride's father, J M Bloss in Reg., by the Rev P S Caffrey, Miss Leonora Bloss to and J J Hoffman, all of this city.

The thanks of the Oregonian office are due the happy couple for bride's cake and wine—the printer's tribute and with their thanks they join the earnest wish that their future may be useful and happy.

The Old Bureau

CHAPTER I

I r e s h l l y p i g r i
And s y r u g r l f

As we were passing d wn Exchange street several years ago we stopped in front of an auction room to examine the various articles that were exposed for sale under the hammer We had finished making a few investments when we heard a female voice inquiring "Is this old bureau to be sold by auction?" Looking up we perceived that the question was addressed to us by a young lady, who stood on the pleasant counter in front of the store We replied that all articles in the store on the sidewalk would be sold to the highest bidder

"I should like this bureau if it goes low enough" she said pointing to an old fashioned article "But I never bought anything at auction in my life and I see no women here I do not know as it would be proper for me to bid"

"It would be perfectly proper" we remarked "but if you wish it I will bid off the bureau"

"If you will sir I shall be greatly obliged to you"

"How high are you willing I should go?"

"I don't know exactly how much it is worth, but if it sells for three or four dollars, you may buy it"

"Shall I speak to a hand cartman to leave it at your house?"

"No, sir I will call at noon and settle for it and take it away I am very much obliged to you for your kindness"

So saying, the young lady went away leaving us to wonder who she was, and of what use the old piece of furniture could be to her. We examined it—took out the drawers—but saw nothing remarkable about it At eleven o'clock, when the auction commenced, we were present, and after waiting near an hour the auctioneer remarked

"We will now sell the bureau What will you give me, gentlemen?"

One man offered two dollars another three and we bid a half dollar more Four dollars were bid—four and a half and five dollars—We were astonished that the old thing should bring so high a price What could we do? See it sold and disappoint the lady? The thought struck us that it might have belonged to some friend, and she wished to purchase it on that account, and rather than disappoint her, we resolved to bid again Six dollars were offered by another to our astonishment, but when our hand is in we seldom let another out bid us, and so we offered until the bureau was run up to ten dollars—and we purchased it for half a dollar more

Certainly we would not have given four dollars for it, to use ourself However, we bought it, and had it sent to our room, telling the auctioneer that if a lady should call for it, to inform her where it might be found. We examined it again and again, and began to regret our purchase, feeling almost certain that the young woman would not thank us for what we had done, but we never mourn over a bad bargain Our philosophy will not permit us to do so

A little after dusk, as we were sitting in our sanctum, the young lady came in, with an apology for intruding, and remarked, 'You bought the bureau—so the auctioneer informs me'

"Yes, I bought it at an extravagant price, I assure you"

"What did you give"

"Ten dollars and a half"

"You astonish me What can I do? I had no idea that it would bring over three or four dollars, and am not prepared to pay for it to-night."

"I suppose it was foolish in me to give so much for it; but I presume you wanted it very much"

"I did, sir, and would not mind paying double the amount, if I were able, rather than not have it."

"So I apprehended Perhaps it may have belonged to some friend of yours?"

"Yes, sir, that bureau was once my mother's—and I noticed a tear come in her eye, which she endeavored to conceal—"but she is dead now, and I wished to keep it in remembrance of her."

Thinking the lady might be poor, we told her that she might take the bureau that night if she wished, and pay us for it when she found it convenient.

"I am greatly obliged to you for your kindness, but would rather that you should keep it until it is paid for"

We urged her to take it, but she refused saying: "I will see what I can do, and call in a day or two and see you," and bidding us good evening, she left

There is something very mysterious about this woman thought we It may be that she is poor, and perhaps in very destitute circumstances But she shows an excellent heart, and the warmest attachment to a deceased mother. Her education must have been good, and she has evidently seen better days And we thought the next time she called upon us, we would ascertain something more of her character and circumstances—perhaps her her name—which we felt deeply anxious to learn

In a day or two the young woman called upon us again, and with tears in her eyes, remarked

"I do not know what you will think of me, but all the money I have in the world is five dollars, this I have brought you toward the bureau you were so kind as to purchase for me" So saying, she placed the money before us in silver

"I shall not take the money at present," we remarked "I can do without it You may take the bureau if you want it, and when you are able, at some future time, you may pay me for it.

She expressed a great deal of gratitude and said. "I would rather you would take what I have," and nothing that we could say would induce her to take the money again

"You appear to have seen some affliction?" we remarked, as we saw the tears in her eyes

"Not much, sir I must confess that I have not always been as poor as I am at present for I have seen better days When my parents were living, I never knew what it was to want for anything Now I cannot say so"

'How long have your parents been dead?" we asked

"About six years since, my father died and it was four years ago, last Saturday, when my mother was buried

At the mention of her mother, the tears came fast to her eyes—a tender chord was touched—we saw it and made no more inquiries—when she took her leave

It was nearly six weeks before we saw the young lady again She then called upon us with the remainder of the money that we had paid for the bureau

We protested against receiving it at that time, thinking it might have been inconvenient for her to pay it but she insisted that we should have it, saying

"I am under great obligations to you for your kindness Had it not been for you I should not have the bureau—the only relic of my mother for it was then impossible for me to raise the amount you so generously paid I shall never forget your kindness"

"Do you wish to take the bureau away?" we inquired

"I have spoken to a cartman who will call here in a short time, and I have it removed out of the way for I suppose you will be glad to get rid of it"

Not at all I am pleased that I was instrumental of a little service to you and if ever I can assist you I shall always be ready to render it

I thank you sir with all my heart

At this moment the man came for the bureau and the lady left, leaving the young lady in a state of

Farmers' Wives

The farmer's wife is or at least should be the most cheerful and happy being in existence Surrounded as she is by every thing beautiful in nature, waking every morning by the joyful carolling of the birds in the trees around the house scented all day by the whispering winds and balmy breezes laden with sweet perfumes stolen from clover fields or apple blossoms, how can she be otherwise than happy? O how from my heart have I pitied poor pale, uneasy minded women, living in large villages or cities, where every inch of ground was precious, and not a bird sang, but with a sort of wheezy, choking music, and the very trees looked dusty and dim

How often in the morning as throwing open my doors and windows to the cool morning air that came bustling in filling every breath of pure, sweet odors from the budding trees and springing grass, have I wished my city friends could stand in the door by my side, and gaze upon the lovely scene spread out to my admiring view

With every thing so beautiful around her, woman can work hard, harder, perhaps than she really ought, but with willing hands You cannot look even for a moment, out at the open door, without seeing some little bird very busy getting straws to build her nest, worms to feed her little fledglings, or working industriously to teach them the use of their tiny wings, that can scarce bear their weight, or perhaps you see some merry, chirping squirrel, idroitly stealing his stock of grain, for the winter he knows must come, sooner or later, and hiding it wisely in the decayed trunk of a neighboring apple tree

The spirit of action is contagious The hours glide by and so does the work, and when dinner time arrives, instead of the pale, languid countenance you find in the city wife as she sits down to her luxurious table loaded with over cooked meat, under cooked vegetables stale fruits and baker's bread, a brisk, cheerful face meets you at the table, whereon you find ham and eggs, and Indian meal pudding and molasses, perhaps, but good, light sweet, wheat bread, and tempting dishes of fruit, fresh from the garden, that would completely upset the equanimity of the guests at the aforesaid city table

A farmer's wife can concoct such dishes as city folks know nothing of With plenty of milk and eggs, there is always something to eat You can never take her so much by surprise that she will give no invitation to stop at tea, and she is never so full of apologies because tea is not nice enough, as to render you uncomfortable

With a mind evenly balanced, a home made happy by her presence, a contented disposition, wishing no change, a quiet, easy way of turning off work, the farmer's wife is a woman to be envied, and still some poor, foolish mortals presume to pity her Pity, indeed, better bestow it where it is needed! The highest, noblest lot of woman is her home mission, and the most superior place for the exercise of her power is in the quiet home in the country, mid the soul starring beauties of nature, the handiwork of nature's God!—N E Farmer
